Step Right Up!

We cannot overstate the importance of business research prior to starting a business or spending money to grow or improve an existing business. We are often asked how to determine what customers want, how competitors are successful, and what the future may hold for a particular industry. The answers are often discovered as we commit to business research.

Some things sound too good to be true, right? What would you say to an absolutely free collection of fabulous databases and books, purchased with the small business owner in mind? Resources that will help you to:

- Establish a new business
- Target your market
- Identify sales leads
- Brush up on your sales skills
- Anticipate and capitalize on industry trends
- Find sources of supply
- Operate your business efficiently
- Keep up with your competition
- Differentiate your products and services
- Plan strategically

Forsyth County has a resource for small businesses that seems too good to be true, but it is not—it is your free Forsyth County Public Library.

Your small business needs information. Libraries are all about information. At Forsyth County Public Library, you will find trained business librarians as well as collections of current business resources available in print and electronically. Anyone with a current library card can log into the website at www.forsythlibrary.org to access many of these resources away from the Library. That’s right—you don’t even need to leave your home or office to use the Library’s electronic databases.

A database you are sure to love is ReferenceUSA.

ReferenceUSA contains detailed business information on over 24 million US businesses, almost 500,000 NC businesses, and over 48,000 businesses in Forsyth and Guilford counties. The business database can be searched by 40 criteria such as type of business, business size, geography or the year established.

ReferenceUSA also offers a residential component listing over 89 million US households (over 6 million in NC). The database includes information that can be used to compile targeted sales lists, make site selections and plan strategically.

Forsyth County Public Library also subscribes to databases that bring together company profiles, industry news, mapping, brand information, rankings, investment reports, company histories, and trade journal articles. These and other helpful databases are available to you away from the library at www.forsythlibrary.org. Visit the Nonprofit Resource Center at the Central Library to identify funding sources and best management practices for nonprofits.

At the library, the small business owner will also find a quiet wireless environment, free meeting rooms that may be reserved in advance, scanning, copy machines and a helpful librarian who will help you find the information you need to bring success to your small business. Give us a call at 336-703-3020, Librarians are happy to help you over the phone.

So what is the catch? How do you take advantage of these free resources? There is no catch. All you need is a Forsyth County Public Library card to keep your business on the cutting edge.

As you can see, the Small Business Center provides a variety of services to small businesses in Forsyth and Stokes counties. We are constantly looking for ways to meet the needs of our clients. Contact us for more information by sending an email to sbc@forsythtech.edu or calling 336.757.3810.
Our resources and advice are always available and always free of charge.
Perseverance
By Darryl Little
Chief Executive – Micro Enterprise Loan Program
“Celebrating 20 years of service to our community 1994-2014”

It’s always important to look back and take an assessment of where you’ve been and how far you’ve come. Each year, I take a whole month to measure the previous year’s outcomes and make new goals throughout the next 12 months or so. Some may refer to this as a strategic plan or a bucket list, but in any event, it should always be something comprehensive and achievable.

If any of you are like me, you’ll come to realize some important things when doing your yearly assessment. First, there’s always an abundance of lofty goals, and second, there’s always a shortage of perseverance. We usually dismiss it as, “there’s just not enough time in the day” or “life got in the way.” Whatever the problem may be, it soon becomes clear; we did not achieve certain goals because we did not invest ourselves with the proper tools/attitude to ensure a positive outcome, and we did not persevere. Take a look at your history; what was your last greatest achievement? What elements were in place to help facilitate it? What qualities did you employ? What were the challenges along the way and how did you overcome them? And finally, how did it feel having accomplished your goal?

Celebrating accomplishments is the key to helping us understand that we can persevere with each new challenge as we use energy from our latest victory. I think most of us realize through trial and error that a good healthy dose of endurance was involved in the equation above. There is absolutely no substitute for good old-fashioned determination and hard work. Of course it’s always important to make sure that the task before you is one that is comprehensive as well. So the next time you plan on climbing Mount Everest, make sure you fortify yourself with all the necessary tools you will need and the mental aptitude to succeed. Oh, and by the way, don’t forget the map.

If there is a financial topic you’d like to see highlighted in an upcoming issue, send your suggestion by email to: sbc@forsythtech.com.

DiSC for Driving Performance
By Mack Thompson, Director of Corporate Training

Forsyth Tech offers a wide range of classes. Learners from all sides of the workforce can find options to grow their knowledge, skills, and abilities. One section of the Economic & Workforce Development division that is dedicated to enhancing the skills is Corporate Education. This group delivers a full range of training from basic computer skills to communication and executive leadership skills.

One of the most popular classes is the DiSC class taught by Corporate Education. DiSC is a personal assessment tool used to improve work productivity, teamwork and communication. DiSC is non-judgmental and helps people discuss their behavioral differences. Participants in a DiSC program are asked to complete a series of questions that produce a detailed report about their personality and behavior.

DiSC profiles help you and your team:
> Increase your self-knowledge: what motivates you and how you respond to conflict
> Facilitate better teamwork and minimize team conflict
> Develop stronger sales skills by identifying and responding to customer styles
> Manage more effectively by understanding the priorities of employees and team members
> Become more self-knowledgeable, well-rounded and effective leaders

The DiSC model provides a common language that people can use to better understand themselves and to adapt their behaviors with others. This can be within a work team, a sales relationship, a leadership position, or other relationships. In turn, this enables better communication skills among teams, individuals, and clients, which then helps drive corporate performance and sales.

If you have questions or would like to schedule a class, please call Mack Thompson at 336.734.7717.

Customer Service Essentials

Many businesses understand the importance of customer service. If customers are not satisfied, they may use another business in the future and voice their complaints to others. This could result in a significant reduction and even business failure.

Customer Service is the process of delivering the value of a product or service to customers and building long-term relationships. Signs of good customer service include:

- Good Attitude
- Conflict Resolution
- Knowledge of Customers
- Timeliness

RREV (your engines!!!) is a catchy way to remember the essentials of customer service:

- Responsiveness — We must effectively and quickly respond to customer concerns and questions.
- Relationship — We must connect with our customers and seek to gain loyalty for the long term.
- Experience — We must create memories that our customers want to enjoy and tell others to do the same.
- Value — We must create memories that our customers want to repeat and tell others to do the same.

Entrepreneurship Skills

Many people ask us what it takes to be a successful business owner. This fall at one of the national entrepreneurship summits, we explored the future of entrepreneurship and skills needed for success, and these ten top themes emerged:

1. Self awareness
2. Social/diversity awareness
3. Resilience
4. Empathy
5. Communication skills
6. Adaptability
7. Collaboration
8. Digital literacy
9. Entrepreneurial mindset
10. Analysis/solution mindset

We are pleased to say that we see many of these skills in the more than 200 people who work with the Small Business Center each month.

Personal Help for Stokes County’s Entrepreneurs and Small Businesses

The Small Business Center (SBC) in Walnut Cove provides you with a local, confidential advisor for your business questions. This free service acts as a sounding board for new ideas and issues that come up within your business dealings. We can help you start a new business, manage and market an existing business or restructure a mature business.

Having the help of a Stokes County native who understands the local business environment can make a difference! These advisors are great go-to resources for questions that pop up such as: My company needs a website, how do I accomplish this? How do I finance my growth plan? How do I compete with the Big Box stores? How do I bring my family business into the 21st century?

For entrepreneurs with a great product idea or business concept, the SBC can help your ideas become a reality by helping you navigate obstacles such as setting the business up, financing, planning, hiring employees and marketing.

The Stokes SBC can also connect you with Forsyth Tech’s training and educational opportunities. We offer classes and seminars locally to educate your workforce and create better employees.

The SBC is located in the Workforce Center (old Joblink building) at 904 North Main Street, Walnut Cove, NC 27052. Contact Holly Kidd to set up a free business consulting session: call 336.591.4074 or register for an appointment online at http://www.forsythtech.edu/services-businesses/small-business-center/.
Free, Confidential Counseling Services
The objective of the Small Business Center Network (SBCN) is to increase the success rate and the number of viable small businesses in North Carolina by providing high quality, readily accessible assistance to prospective and existing small business owners which will lead to job creation and retention. Each Small Business Center (SBC) will be a community-based provider of education and training, counseling, referral and information.

The Forsyth Tech Small Business Center promotes economic development. Confidential counseling services and the resource libraries are available free of charge as are most seminars and workshops. For course information and/or to register, visit http://www.forsythtech.edu/services-businesses/small-business-center.
