“I wanted better for myself and my family. Going back to school was the answer.”

- Connery Swinson,
Maintenance Planner

Your New Beginning

More Training Offers More Opportunities Connery Swinson, Maintenance Planner

Connery Swinson bet himself he could go back to school and land a better job, and it paid off. "I wanted better for myself and my family. Going back to school was the answer," said Swinson.

Swinson's background included extensive maintenance but he lacked the Heating, Ventilation and Air Conditioning (HVAC) experience he wanted.

He called Forsyth Technical Community College and spoke with Josh Burcham, dean, Community Workforce and Development. "Josh told me about the collaborations with businesses, and what the college was trying to accomplish with their HVAC/Facility Tech students," said Swinson. "That told me Forsyth Tech was the best opportunity and fit for me."

With his wife's encouragement, Swinson worked 10-hour days in his previous job for seven months while going to school two nights a week in the HVAC training program. Swinson said, "I'm ambitious, but I believe in working hard to get to what I want."

He earned his certification in November 2018 through Forsyth Tech at Goodwill Industries.

"I had a great time learning from the instructor, Jerry Hobson," said Swinson. He has a wealth of knowledge as a former Engineering Manager in a hospital for 30 years."

"Forsyth Tech gave me the opportunity to improve my skills, develop my career and build a network of friends I keep in touch with today," said Swinson. "This program opened so many other opportunities. Many companies are looking for HVAC techs but there are not enough of us to fill the need. Having your certification will give you multiple opportunities."

Swinson is now maintenance planner/scheduler for Guilford Technical Community College, working with a computerized maintenance management system to improve the efficiency and tracking of repairs and work requests for all of the college campuses. "I love what I do and it's very rewarding," said Swinson.
